

Michael Wilson joined WSSDA in March 2012 as communications and marketing director.

He was communication director for the Washington Employment Security Department for 13 years and worked at the state Department of Health for three years.

Prior to that, Michael was press secretary for Gov. Madeleine Kunin of Vermont. He also served as her state economist and deputy commissioner of labor. He began his career as a newspaper reporter.

Michael holds a bachelor's degree in politics from the University of Pennsylvania and a master's degree in economics from Oxford University, England. He graduated from Central Valley High School outside Spokane.

Michael is an avid sailor, both offshore and throughout the Puget Sound. He and his wife Jan live on a small farm with numerous chickens, cats, dogs and horses.
